LA FOLLETTE ON THE JOB

Senator Holds Conferences at His Office Today Preliminary to Big Meeting Tomorrow—State Political News.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 16.—The office of Senator La Follette and the executive chamber were scenes of rival attractions in political circles today. Senator La Follette arrived in this city Saturday night. He is in the best of health and never appeared more rugged and vigorous. He was at his office at seven o'clock this morning. Political adherents came here from all sections of the state today to see him and notably among them were Walter C. Owens, Geo. E. Stunt, Lieut. Governor Morris, of La Crosse and Senator Otto Borschard of La Crosse. The important topic of the politicians is the platform which will be adopted at the republican convention tomorrow. If the talk of the attending politicians is any criterion to judge by there will be no endorsement of presidential candidates.

The platform will contain the well known principles of La Follette and will not endorse the presidential candidates on the ground that the presidential and state ballots have been separated by a recent enactment to the legislature.

Close friends of Senator La Follette say that he will make a speaking campaign in this state.

HAS FIVE REASONS FOR DISMISSAL OF DIETZ MURDER CASE

District Attorney of Sawyer County Secures Dismissal of Charges Against Three Dietz Children.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 16.—The case of the state of Wisconsin against Hattie, Clarence and Elmina Dietz, was dismissed this morning in the circuit court on the motion of District Attorney Williams of Sawyer county. All of the defendants appeared in court each attended with an attorney. There were four in the case charging assault with intent to kill.

District Attorney Williams asked for the dismissal of the cases on the following contentions: First, that one of the principal witnesses, John Robich, is now in Australia and another, John Hesse, is a professional detective and it is believed that his testimony would not have much strength with the jury as he was working for pay at the time in assisting to get John Dietz.

Second, Hattie is the wife of John Dietz. Elmina at the time of the trouble was sixteen years old, Leslie 17 and Clarence 19. John Dietz was a man of strong personality and liable to use violence if anyone differed with him and that the members of his family were entirely under his sway.

Third, John Dietz is now in prison for life. The feeling in the minds of the jury would be that he alone was to blame and he being punished for his crime that would be enough.

Fourth, the county of Sawyer has requested that the case be dismissed.

Fifth, for some years John Dietz has been defying the law and now is being amply punished and it is not believed that the jury would feel that the members of his family should be punished for their participation in the trouble, while under his control.

In conclusion the district attorney said: "It is evident that the jury in this action would take a large and generous view of the case and therefore the accused should and ought to be set free."

There are still pending in Sawyer county prosecutions against John and Clarence Dietz arising from the attack with Bert Horel several years ago. It is alleged Horel was assaulted in connection with the dispute concerning the schooling of the Dietz children.

STATE-WIDE PRIMARY HELD IN MINNESOTA

New Law Will Be Given Its First Try-out Tomorrow—Senator Knute Nelson for Re-election.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 16.—Minnesota's direct primary law, which has a second choice provision as its distinguishing feature, will be given its first try-out tomorrow, when the several parties will name their candidates to go on state, congressional, legislative and county tickets at the general election in November.

The main state-wide contest so far as a gubernatorial nominee is concerned is between Governor A. O. Eberhart, who is seeking re-election, and a field of five rivals in the republican camp. C. N. Andrist of Minneapolis and P. M. Ringdal of Crookston are aspirants for the Democratic nomination for governor.

United States Senator Knute Nelson is seeking re-election for re-election and is opposed by James A. Peterson of Minneapolis on the Republican side. The Democratic choice for the senatorship is Dan W. Lawler of St. Paul.

Republicans and Democrats have plural candidates for most of the places on the state ticket. Other contests are embraced in several of the congressional districts. The prohibitionists have practically an entire state ticket in the field and the Public Ownership and Socialist Labor parties have selected candidates for governor. The Progressives have not determined the stand they will take with regards to the Republican candidates. A definite decision as to whether an independent state ticket will be put in the field is expected to be reached at a conference of the Progressive party leaders at the end of this week.

PIRACY IN POLITICS OF TODAY DECLARES DEMOCRAT NOMINEE

Gov. Marshall, Candidate for Vice President, Takes Slap at Opposition, Particularly the Progressive Party.

Kansas City, Kas., Sept. 16.—"Never has the black flag of piracy floated above the political seas as now; never was it saluted with so much honor," declared Governor Thomas H. Marshall, democratic nominee for vice president, in a speech here today.

"In all my political career I have never asked anybody to vote for me; I do not propose to do so now. I am unfit for public office if my personal preference is more potent than the triumph of the cause I advocate. He is not a good soldier who is not willing to sacrifice himself in an effort to save his party standard. My personality is of slight moment to the voters of this country unless they believe in my party platform, and in my intent, if elected, to help carry out its pledges. I have no quarrel with the man who disagrees with me with reference to the democratic platform. He may be right, much as I doubt it. This principle is vital. That every man in America have the right to run for office and to vote for whomsoever he chooses.

"When matters of great pith and moment are involved a party is not dealing honestly with the voters unless it declares its principles and pledges its candidates to maintain them. A vote obtained through dissimulation is wrongfully obtained.

"Could anything be more practical than the open boast of the Roosevelt men that they kept still and waited until the Maine election had been carried before declaring their principles? Every regular republican vote obtained in this way in the state of Maine was fully as dishonest as the votes in the Chicago convention which nominated Taft.

"A party that opens its political meetings with prayer and sings, 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' and claims to be the embodiment of pure politics and clean Americanism ought to be honest enough not to deceive the voter, not to dissemble, and not to resort to legal technicalities in order to force the voter either to vote for candidates he does not desire in office, or to vote against his principles.

"The progressives claim to be divorced from the republican party on the ground of non-support. They have renounced that party and all its works and all its ways. They claim that the republican party is even worse than the democratic party; yet here in the state of Kansas they propose to place the republican emblem above their progressive electors and, thereby force the Taft republicans to do one of three things, none of which they want to do: To vote the progressive ticket; to vote against their principles; and for the democratic ticket, or to stay away from the polls and not vote at all.

"That may be a mark of slick politics, but it is not a mark of honest politics. I should like to win the votes of the Taft republicans in Kansas, provided they really want to vote for me, but I insist that if they do not want to vote for me, they should have the right, as American citizens, to vote for Mr. Sherman.

"There can be no doubt as to the duty of a governor whose state faces this condition of affairs. He should at once convene his legislature to change the state's election laws. Every man in Kansas should have a chance to vote for the candidates he desires in office. It is also the duty of your governor to see that the republican party has its ticket upon the ballot and under its emblem.

"I cannot speak for my distinguished associate, for whose election I most honestly plead, but I truthfully say for myself that my ideas of government make me prefer the loss of Kansas, when the men of this state have had a chance to vote as they desire, to the winning of Kansas through a political trick, such as is being worked here—a trick which would ill become a candidate for constable.

ATTACKED HIS WIFE; GETS HEAVY PENALTY

Thomas Crissman Pleads Guilty to Offense—Gets Ten Days in Jail and Fine of $20.

Thomas Crissman pleaded guilty in the municipal court this morning to making an assault upon his wife and was sentenced to ten days imprisonment in jail and $20 fine and costs. In default of the fine he will have to extend his sojourn there twenty-five days. Mrs. Crissman complained that he struck her in the face, knocking out one front tooth. Crissman admitted that he had been drinking and said that his wife had provoked him. Thomas Flood, against whom a charge of intoxication was made, was sentenced to ten days in jail and a fine of $5 and costs or ten days additional. Complaint was made that Flood had been creating a disturbance in another man's home.

Joe Meyers, charged with a similar offense, went to jail for seven days, not being able to pay a fine of $3 and costs.

FOILED AN ATTEMPT TO ROB FORD STORE

Would Be Burglar Frightened Away While Trying to Open Window—Suspect Is Released.

An attempt to break into and rob the Ford clothing store on the Milwaukee street bridge, was thwarted early yesterday afternoon, the would-be thief taking flight at the approach of Louis Binnitz, a tailor, who overheard his attempt to raise a window on the west side of the building. Mr. Binnitz found a naked wire hanging in the window, with which the burglar had contrived to release the catch. He had taken to his heels too quickly for Mr. Binnitz to get a good look at him.

Inquiries disclosed the fact that a young man with a wire in his hand had been seen near the power-house. A description of him was obtained and later in the afternoon Officer Fanning placed under arrest on Franklin street, a young man who gave the name of Charles Duffy.

Duffy acknowledged having been in the neighborhood of the power house, and to having had a wire in his possession, but denied trying to break into the Ford store.

Chief of Police Appleby and Judge Fitch examined him closely but found that there was not sufficient evidence against him to warrant a charge of burglary and he was released late this morning. Duffy claims to live in Madison and left his telephone number with the police. He said he had been working for the Northwestern railway here and was waiting for his pay. He admitted serving time in the State Industrial School.

Price of Ignorance.

Many children are never taught to think and to reason out every question in a fair-minded, reasoning manner. That is why we meet with and suffer from so many unreasonable and unreasoning men and women who are governed by prejudice, impulse and personal feelings, instead of by thoughtful and careful consideration. They do not see what is right because they do not know how to judge without prejudice.—Our Four-Footed Friends.

Prisoner Went on Strike.

A "one-man" strike occurred, not long ago, in the Perth (West Australia) jail, when a man who is serving a seven years' sentence and who was employed in the tailoring room, went on strike on the ground that he was competing unfairly with outside trade. Because of his unisonistic principles he was sentenced to three days' solitary confinement, and was ordered to resume work.

Wonder what upset your stomach. If your stomach is in a revolt; if damage—do you? Well, don't bother—which portion of the food did the sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into subnormal lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you truly will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

Ty Cobb is a good thing and he knows it. Owner Frank Navin of the Detroit club is glad that Ty is a good thing, but sorry indeed that the Georgian is aware of that fact. Reason: Cobb is about to demand $15,000 a year for his services. He'll get it.

too. It was Cobb's playing that brought the Tigers a pennant or two; and this year, when practically the entire Detroit team is playing 'way off, Cobb is putting up just as good a game as ever. He ranks first in batting, second in base-stealing and is the third best run getter in the American league. In addition to that, he's the prize drawing card of Ban Johnson's organization.

With characteristic deliberateness, the Germans have already begun work on the building of the Olympic stadium for the games to be held in Berlin during 1912. This stadium will have a hotel annex for the athletes, bedrooms, bathrooms, lounging rooms, training rooms; in short, everything necessary for a continuous tournament so that there will be no necessity to tire the contestants by trips to and from the city. The formal opening of the new big athletic playground will take place next year, when sports will be held there to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Kaiser's accession.

managing the Oshkosh team he signed seventeen men whose ability he well knew and no time was wasted in trying out unknowns at the spring training camp at Sterling, Ill.

Oshkosh got away good early in the season and only once during the race did the Indians drop to third place and then only for a day. Racine occupied the top round of the latter one day, and Appleton held the position for a short time.

Credit is due not only to Manager Killian but to Attorney John F. Kulwin whose efforts enabled Oshkosh to finish at the top. At the middle of the 1911 season Mr. Kulwin assumed an active interest in the Oshkosh club and the team after gracing the cellar position until July 4 forged to the front, finishing in fifth place.

Mr. Kulwin began preparations at the close of the season for the 1912 team. Pitcher Lind was purchased from the defunct Fond du Lac team. First Baseman, Tracy was bought from La Crosse, and Third Baseman, Keran, Outfielder Klein and Pitchers Baillies and Watson were acquired from the Minny league. Shortstop Taylor was drafted from a Carolina club and Outfielder Sheffield was taken from the St. Paul Club.

EXTRA INNING GAME GOES TO THE CUBS

Cardinals Defeated in First Contest Of Series For City Title By 2 to 1 Score At End of Eleven Innings.

In the opening game of the series of the championship of the city the Janesville Cubs defeated the Janesville Cardinals by the score of 2 to 1 after eleven innings of the most exciting and snappy baseball. A good sized crowd attended the game, which was one of the best that has been played in this city this season. Both teams played good ball, and it was anybody's game until the last half of the eleventh. Connell pitched a fine game for the Cubs, allowing only five hits and not a base on balls. Berger was touched up for only six hits, and displayed ability in getting himself out of tight places. Connell struck out seven and Berger three. The Cardinals seemed to hit Berger's delivery beyond the infield.

The game was full of thrills, and many plays brought forth the applause of the fans. In the seventh, with three men on bases and no outs, Hill, of the Cardinals, boosted a high fly to Nebr in center field, and Cronin on third tried to beat the throw Doran at the plate and Doran relayed the ball to Harper on third, who touched out Cronin. This play seemed a rally for the Cardinals. W. Berger scored the first run for the Cardinals by good inside ball playing and a "Ty Cobb" slide at the home plate. In the ninth, with the score 1 to 0 for the Cardinals, the Cubs became desperate, and Sullivan came to the plate with a bat as big as "Home Run Baker's" prize was club.

Sullivan singled, stole second, and went home, tying the score, when Harper hit a long sacrifice fly. There was nothing doing in the scoring line for either side until the last half of the eleventh, when Green slipped in the winning score for the Cubs. Edison was thrown out and the Cardinals retired. The Cubs came to bat, and Green hit, reaching second on a close play. He stole third and scored on Sullivan's fly. Berger's throw to hand Green off at the plate being low. The second game of the series will be played next Sunday. The box score for yesterday's game was:

W-I LEAGUE HONORS TAKEN BY OSHKOSH

Victorious Indians Given Rousing Greeting When They Return to Home City Saturday Evening.

(The eighth consecutive season of the Wisconsin-Illinois league was brought to a close on Sunday with the pennant safely tucked away at Oshkosh. The 1912 schedule provided for 140 games fourteen more than the longest previous schedule.

Not since 1887 when Frank Selee piloted an Oshkosh team to a championship have the Sawdust city fans been so wrought up as this season. Saturday night when the Indians arrived home from their final station they were met at the railway station by a band and hundreds of fans, and were paraded about the city. Each member of the team is to receive a watch fob as a tribute from the fans. Oshkosh was the runnerup in 1905, the year the league was organized, but since that time the teams have trailed hopelessly in the rear until this season.

PICTURES OF NOTED ACTORS ARE SHOWN

Nat Goodwin Company in "Oliver Twist" Seen on Screen at Myers Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

Motion pictures of the Nat Goodwin company, which is composed of some of the greatest of American stars with Mr. Goodwin himself at the head presenting "Oliver Twist" were shown on the screen of the Myers theatre Saturday and Sunday.

The story of the deserted wife and his life among the London criminals was depicted with all the realism that wonderful acting and careful stage setting can give. Mr. Goodwin in the part of "Fagin" the king of the robbers was shown with such striking exactness that it needed only the spoken words to make one believe that the great actor was there in person.

The part of Oliver was taken by Vinnie Burns, that of Bill Sykes by Mortimer Martins, Nancy Sykes by Beatrice Moreland and the Arthur Dodger by Charles Rodgers.

There were good audiences at the four performances here and those who saw the films can testify to the high place which motion picture production has earned in the dramatic world when so great a company of actors can be seen with like-like correctness on the picture screen.

"BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS."

Manager Myers is being overwhelmed with mail orders for seats for the coming performance of "Bunty Pulls the Strings" at Myers Theatre on Tuesday, Sept. 17, and the indications are that it will be a record-breaking engagement. The theatregoers of Janesville are alive to the fact that "Bunty" is one of the big theatrical novelties of the present season, and are ready with their purse strings open to respond with their good hard cash.

The story is simple and tells all about the trials of a small community in the town of Lintrebaugh, Scotland, where Tammas Biggar, grace, church-warden and magistrate, fled, after having years before the opening of the play deserted his bride-to-be on the day of his wedding, and is forced into an unpleasant marriage with a sour-faced old maid, whose money he had used without her knowledge. His daughter, "Bunty," having become cognizant of the fact, pulls the strings and saves her father from his unpleasant situation, and arranges for his marriage to his love of long ago, who has put in an appearance just at the proper moment.

"GRAUSTARK."

When "Graustark," George Barr McCutcheon's book play, which has been dramatized for stage purposes by Grace Hayward, comes to the Myers Theatre for two performances, the theatregoers of Janesville will have the opportunity of witnessing the most talked of and successful romantic drama before the public in recent years.

This play has been dramatized with Mr. McCutcheon's novel as a basis, and those readers of fiction who have passed a few hours pleasantly pursuing same, will be more than satisfied with its appearance in play form.

Miss Hayward, who made the dramatization has closely followed the book. From the time of the meeting of the young couple in Denver, through the strenuous and trying ordeals of court life and intrigues, to the final culmination of the story, he has been most faithful in his portrayal.

This play comes to Myers Theatre with the assurance of all concerned in its presentation of a most excellent cast of players, especially fitted for their parts and a magnificent scenic production of old world scenes, with costuming to match.

It is seldom a mythical principally such as Graustark is used as a background for a play, hence the tremendous success of this offering. Not since the "Prisoner of Zenda" was given for the delectation of theatregoers, has there been a more dramatic drama, when it is as clean and wholesome as "Graustark."

As a dramatic offering, it should surely prove the banner attraction of the year at Myers Theatre, Janesville's most popular playhouse, on Thursday, Sept. 19, Mat. and evening.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

New Gun a Boon to Mankind.

According to the dispatches, a German inventor has evolved a new pistol which shoots vapor instead of bullets. The vapor will immediately overpower and render unconscious a highwayman or any other pestiferous person, but will not kill. The victim of the gun remains unconscious until the police arrive.

It would appear as though there is a great field for this gun in America and it could be used to good advantage by many men every day upon the following:

Book agents. Chronic story tellers. Those who talk politics. Life insurance solicitors. Apartment building sopranos. Back fence gossipers. Baseball monomaniacs. Party who reports conversation of his new baby.

Howler who believes country is going to the dogs. Automobile salesmen. Those who have mine stock to sell.

Blue Monday. Of course everything has gone crooked. As crooked as things can well go. Of course deepest gloom is your portion.

And storm clouds are gathering low. You're filled with deep, dark disappointments. In all of the world there's no friend. Your troubles will surely overwhelm you.

They never will come to an end. Your grocery bill is a corker. Your note is past due at the bank. They're going to foreclose on the homestead.

Unless you put up with a yank. Your automobile has grown balky. The kitchen roof's sprung a great leak.

And there are nine thousand more troubles. Of which you would just love to speak. When things seem as bad as they can be.

Just lay all your cares on the shelf. There are some folks worse off than you are. You should be ashamed of yourself.

Why be Superstitious? If anybody comes along the road and offers you $13 or $15,000 or $17,000,000, take it. Don't be superstitious. For a reason just ponder upon the following:

There are 13 colonies that licked King George and gained their freedom. There are 13 stripes on the grand old flag.

E Pluribus Unum contains 13 letters. The eagle on the national emblem holds a thunderbolt which contains 13 darts.

The eagle holds an olive branch with 13 leaves. There are 13 feathers in each of the eagle's wings.

And in spite of all that it's some republic and it's getting bigger all the time.

Off in the Stilly Night. Off in the stilly night.

extraordinary session of the New York supreme court convened today to investigate certain matters relating to the conduct of public affairs in the city and county of Albany. The session is expected to act in the matter of disclosures made by the special committee of the state senate which last fall investigated the relationship alleged to exist between certain city and county officials and gambling and disorderly resorts in Albany.

BROTHERHOOD OF CARPENTERS' BIENNIAL MEETING OPENED. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, one of the largest and most influential organizations of skilled workers in America, opened its biennial convention in Washington today with an attendance of about 500 delegates from points throughout the United States and Canada.

Way of War. It is not the way of courage but the way of war to attack just those who cannot escape.

Will Fight Importation of White Pine Rust. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—Hearings were commenced at the Department of Agriculture today with a view to determining the best course to be pursued to prevent the importation of the white pine blister rust into this country. The rust is a fungous disease that is now ravaging pine trees in practically all of Europe. To prevent the introduction of the rust into the United States it is probable a sweeping quarantine will be declared against European countries as to the importation of the various species of pines liable to introduce the blight.

Of Little Experience. The only girl who regards love as a serious matter is she who has been in love but once.

Our Minds Are as Children. I think that we should treat our minds as innocent and ingenious children whose guardians we are, be careful what objects and subjects we thrust on their attention.—Thoreau.

GIVE THE NERVE FORCE THAT FLOWS THROUGH YOUR SPINAL COLUMN THE RIGHT OF WAY OR YOU'LL SUFFER

Cross a Pair of Wires on a Great Telephone System and it Will Upset the System. Cross a Nerve in Your Spinal Column and it Will Upset Your System.

The vital nerve force that flows down from your brain through the spinal cord and from the spine is distributed to all parts of the body must have the Right of Way over the spinal nerve it travels. Put the slightest impediment on the nerve through which it flows and a diseased or weakened part is the result. A fall, a jar, a wrench or contracted muscles are liable to cause an impediment on one of your spinal nerves through a subluxation or falling of the vertebra. Unless you have the subluxation removed through Chiropractic adjustments, serious complications will arise in time.

A well known man suffered for many years with dyspepsia and indigestion. An adjustment of his 5th, 6th and 7th vertebra, shown in the picture, which restored the nervous energy needed in his stomach and he can now eat any kind of food without trouble. If you suffer or are in pain, see the Chiropractor at once.

NORRIS DISPLEASED WITH BOSTON COURT

George W. Norris.

As soon as congress convenes in December, Representative George W. Norris, of Nebraska, will ask for an investigation of the Federal Court at Boston, which ordered secret hearings in the United States Shoe Machinery company case. "This is a bad precedent," recently declared Mr. Norris. "If it should be allowed to go unchallenged it might bring about an era of star chamber sittings on the very case that the public is most interested in. We must have an investigation."

MAY SOLVE IDENTITY OF UNCLAIMED BODY

Mrs. Fred Waters, Rockford, Fears That Husband May be Victim Of Railway Accident on Friday.

A clue that may lead to the discovery of the identity of the unknown man killed by a St. Paul train five miles east of the city Friday morning was received by Chief of Police Appleby this morning in a letter from Mrs. Fred Waters of Rockford, who fears that the unfortunate man was her husband. Her letter is as follows:

Rockford, Ill.,
September, 15, 1912.

Chief of Police
Dear Sir:
While reading the Rockford-Register Gazette, I noticed an item which I think might lead to a clue to the man who was killed by a St. Paul train. My husband has been missing since last January and his name is Fred Waters and he wears a pair of overalls, thick, heavy shoes, also a heavy cap while traveling. He is an engineer by trade and always goes traveling the summer months. So if you would please find out for me, I should be very much obliged for what information you may give me. My husband has dark brown hair, almost black, blue eyes. He is thirty-two years old, has a smooth face, and is nearly five feet three inches tall. Now if you can let me know as it would set my mind at rest.

I am yours respectfully,
MRS. FRED WATERS,
938 Killam Ave., Rockford.
The clothing of the dead man corresponds exactly to that described, even to the initials "F. W." on his underwear. Although his remains were too much mangled to discover the color of his eyes or his height, it was noticed that he had dark hair. The fact that his coat had been purchased in Beloit also supports the theory that he is the missing Rockford man, as does also the fact that his pockets and shoes were full of cash. It may be that the man killed was on his way home as the threshing season is drawing to a close.

Mrs. Waters came to this city late this morning to make an investigation. She found that the remains of the unknown dead man were buried last Saturday afternoon at Oak Hill cemetery, but was able to examine the clothing that was picked up. Mrs. Waters could not positively identify them as her husband's, though she thought the cap was one which he had worn. It is not probable that the remains will be exhumed.

TO COMMENCE WORK ON WASHINGTON ST.

Gund & Graham, Who Were Awarded Contract, to Begin Operations on Wednesday of This Week.

Work toward the improvement of Washington street by macadamizing and the laying of curb and gutter will be started on Wednesday of this week, according to George Croft, superintendent for Gund & Graham of Freeport, who were awarded the contract for the work. The company is awaiting the arrival of five dump wagons recently ordered from a Kenosha firm, before beginning operations.

These wagons have a capacity of two yards each and are great labor-savers. Mr. Croft will put as many men to work as he can hire. One side of the street will be macadamized before work is begun on the other, so that traffic will not be impeded.

Approximately three thousand cubic yards of material will have to be moved in preparing the grade. The old macadam will be used in the preparation of the sub-grade foundation.

The waste material will be used in grading up some of the intersecting streets. Because of the great quantity of old material to be used it was difficult for the contractors to prepare a close estimate. The Board of Public Works accepted the bid of Gund & Graham, the lowest submitted, after the latter had consented to certain reductions which would bring the cost of the work very nearly to the city engineer's estimate.

The improvement of Milwaukee avenue will not be attempted until the Washington street work is completed. Cold weather will offer less impediment to work there than on Washington street, because the sub-grade is more easily worked.

FRUITS ARE VERY PLENTIFUL ON JANESVILLE MARKET.

The lack of very much fruit in the early part of the season has been overcome and there is plenty of ma-days. The Concord grapes which came on the market sometime ago are very fine and they are selling at 22 cents a basket. The home grown grapes are just starting to come on the market, but a very large crop is looked for. Hubbard squash are a new article on the market this morning and they are very large and they retail for 15 and 20 cents. Grapes of the Malaga variety are getting to be much better than when they first came on the market and they are selling for 10 cents a pound. The weather has been so very good for the past two months that a good crop of fall vegetables are expected. The prices of the local market

WILL GIVE BANQUET
FOR JAMES J. HILL

St. Paul to Honor President of Great Northern Railway on Seventy-Fourth Birthday Anniversary.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 16.—Seldom if ever before in her history has St.
Paul entertained at one time so many noted figures from the world of finance, industry and railroads as gathered here today to attend the complimentary banquet to James J.
Hill, the president of the Great Northern Railway. The banquet marks the seventy-fourth birthday anniversary of Mr. Hill and his retirement from the active management of the affairs of the great railroad system with which he has gridironed the Northwest and which has been perhaps the leading factor in the development of the northern country stretching from the Twin Cities to the Pacific coast.

James J. Hill was born on a farm near Guelph, Ont., Sept. 16, 1838, of Scottish-Irish parents. His father's death when he was 14 years made it necessary for him to go to work as a clerk in the village store, where, it is said, his first wage was but $1 a week.

In 1856 he set out for California, but within the year found himself on the steamboat docks at St. Paul, where he obtained employment as a shipping clerk. He thus became identified from his first arrival in the Northwest with transportation there, and he also from the first manifested the keenest interest in all that pertained to commerce and agriculture.

After serving two years as general manager, Mr. Hill became president of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway in 1883 and continued as such until 1891. He was chosen president of the Great Northern Railway Sept. 11, 1899. In 1907 he gave up the presidency and became chairman of the board of directors. Last June he served the last link connecting him with active railroad work by retiring from his position as head of the board of directors of the Great Northern.

Heart Controls Life.
As the fountain from the hidden spring, so issues man's life from the secret recesses of his heart. All that he is and does is generated there. All that he will be and do will take its rise there.—James Allen.

The Importance Of Light In Its Relation To Health

The desirability of having an abundance of light and pure air in the home has long been recognized. But the positive value of these agencies in the prevention of disease is just beginning to receive due appreciation and broad endorsement by the medical profession.

Electric Light Is Endorsed
As Healthful Illuminant

Electric light, in its chemical and physiological effects, is a fair substitute for sunlight. It is a demonstrated fact that it stimulates plant growth and destroys certain dangerous germs exposed to its rays. There is no known reason of science why an electrically lighted room should not be as healthful as one lighted by the sun's rays.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON THE POSSIBILITY OF FORGETTING.

TWO good friends had quarreled. One, who is of a passionate disposition, completely lost her self-control and said many unkind things. When the thundercloud of misunderstanding finally passed over and the sunshine of reconciliation began to struggle out again, the quick-tempered woman told her friend she was sorry for her bitter words, and then added cheerfully, "And now you'll forgive me and forget all that I said, won't you?"

Whereupon the other woman answered, "Forgive you? Yes indeed, I'll do that with all my heart, but I cannot promise to forget because that is beyond my power."

The first woman called that an ungracious and relentless attitude.

Do you?

I don't. To me it was simply a truthful answer. Perhaps it might have been kinder for the woman to say that she'd forget all about it and things would be just as they were before, but it probably wouldn't have been true. In one of his essays Stevenson says, "I hate questioners and questioners; there are so few that can be spoken to without a lie. 'Do you forgive me?' Madam and sweetheart, so far as I have gone in life I have never yet been able to discover what forgiveness means. 'Is it still the same between us?' Why how can it be? It is eternally different, and yet you are still the friend of my heart." It seems to me he should have added that other question, "Will you forget all that I have said or done?" for surely no other question that we foolishly and hopelessly ask each other is quite so impossible to answer without a lie or a very cruel truth.

The woman called her friend relentless. That was not fair. It is not the person who cannot forget that is relentless; it is life itself and the laws of life that are inflexible.

I may no more promise my friend that I will forget anything than I may promise her that a deep cut in my flesh will heal and not leave any scar. I may promise that I will put soothing medicine in the cut and bind it up and keep it from irritation, and do all I can to make it heal without a scar, but I cannot surely promise what will be the result.

Hearts and souls are quite as sensitive as bodies. We would not easily allow ourselves in a flash of temper to scar our friend's body; why, then, be so careless with his heart.

Why? Because we think that such scars can be easily obliterated; because we think we can say, "please forget" and let that end it.

But we cannot.

And the next time you lift the javelin of an unforgettable word to cast into your friend's heart, suppose you remember that "Suppose you stop just one moment before you speak, and say this sentence over to yourself. 'Of the unspoken word I am master, but the spoken word is master of me.'"

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

Practical Talks On Economy

NOW that women are beginning to think a little more logically upon the problems that are peculiarly theirs, many things which they have done in a haphazard way are being put on a businesslike basis. One of these is the spending of money. And if ever there was a proposition in which snarl is needed to be straightened out, it is this handling of the family purse.

A prominent club-woman who has the large vision that can look over the entire field of woman's work and interests, and see the dark spots and weak spots, and the places where her path wanders around in a labyrinth and never gets anywhere, proposes a chair in economy in women's colleges. And for the benefit of those who cannot go to college, she furthermore advocates once-a-week talks on the same important subject.

And by this she doesn't mean that women should be taught to be more economical. For most women have been sprinting along that path for ages, until they are worn out body and spirit and sick of the thought of economy. The chief trouble has been that though they have been going on the right road, they have wasted time and strength because they didn't know how to make headway.

She wants them shown how to make headway.

One thing she proposes is talks on shopping. She wants women told the kind of dress goods that will wear; the best class to choose for certain kinds of service; sorts that will not fade, that will wash satisfactorily, and all such things as these. In fact, she wants pointed out the economical path through the mazes of the shops, so that a woman will come out with value for her money, no matter what class of goods she may have bought.

And in these days when many of us can't tell imitation wool from the real article, or paper, treated to look like leather, from the real hide, such a course would be most valuable. In the old days when women wove and dyed their fabrics, they had no need of such instruction; but to-day most of us are as ignorant as a baby, of textiles and dyes, and are absolutely at the mercy of those who purvey to us.

The plan she would have carried into foodstuffs. Practical talks on marketing would be given, and also what to buy from the point of view of nourishment would be taught. Such a course would result in reduced cost of living and an increased health rate for the family.

How to apportion one's income would also be among the subjects of discussion. In fact, there is a big field here for useful and needed work. And it is to be hoped that this course, and these lectures, will soon become realities.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

wasn't a conspicuous thing about her—even her suffraget hat, brown and trimmed with an upstanding bit of feather and ribbon, didn't look like a suffragist hat.

Passing her on the street, you might have thought, "There goes a pleasant person"—if you'd been observing enough to notice individuals. But when one saw this woman earnest and yet with a smile glinting standing upon a little stone speaker's platform in the Public Square of a

LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL, GLOSSY HAIR, NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Hair Coming Out?—If Dry, Brittle, Thin or Your Scalp Itches and is Full of Dandruff—Use "Danderine." Grows New Hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of Dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. A little Danderine will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair taking one small big city, with a great yellow banner in swinging folds beside her, while she talked to a large crowd of men who listened silently, thoughtfully and respectfully—well, one simply had to stop and take notice.

The woman was Miss Louise Hall, well known suffragist leader of Rhode Island. She was talking, not shouting nor gesturing, and she was saying what held the attention of men who might easily have been made into a jeering crowd.

Was Miss Hall really doing anything unwomanly in speaking to the public in the Public Square?

Rather, wasn't she a sort of martyr, taking up the cause for us who are so "womanly" that we are cowards, so "refined" that we turn up our noses at those who are doing the unpleasant tasks for our benefit?

Every great movement has had to have exponents. Many of these exponents have been extremists, but without them we should never have struck a happy medium, nor had our attention called to the purpose of the movement.

The advance agents of almost every great movement, no matter of what nature, have had thankless jobs. We have jeered and kicked them, we have burned them at the stake and pelted them with ancient hatred. We've ridiculed them and hated them, though sometimes, a long time after they are safely dead, we honor them and put them in our Hall of Fame.

The fact is that a few earnest, modest, thoughtful and very womanly women are putting their natural redoubt in the background and doing their best to help the indifferent masses of their sisters.

They are those who see ahead and who recognize the increasing difficulties of womanhood. We who pass along the street, priding ourselves upon our modesty and our womanliness which would not stoop to such a thing, are only the beneficiaries of those who have for us, who fight for what most of us don't realize we need and who are asking that we pay a little more attention to what the future is bringing us and our children and our homes instead of merely consulting the conveniences of the moment.

Sometimes one is compelled to think that the full and rich meaning of real womanliness is not understood by the average man and woman. The term is too often used as an expression of personal prejudice, or an excuse for selfishness or narrow-mindedness—or laziness.

The Kitchen Cabinet

LACK of sleep, lack of exercise in the open air, lack of nourishing food and of congenial intercourse with friends, overwork, doing our work in the spirit of drudgery—all these things are leaks which sap our energy and rob us of the great reserves of life-force which enable us to achieve results.

—O. S. Marden.

EVERY DAY HELPS.

Do not despair if you have no glue at hand for the emergency. Just take a little of the white of an egg that is left in the shell, and it will answer every purpose.

Lemon juice and salt will take out rust spots. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." Lay the linen in the sun, for it has a large share in doing the work.

Scorched spots, unless badly burned, may be removed by keeping wet and letting them lie in the sun.

The sun is a wonderful bleaching agent, and all linen which has become yellow will whiten wonderfully if dampened and allowed to lie on the grass in the sun.

Add flavoring extracts, when possible, to the food when cold, as cooking dissipates the volatile substance.

Canned Tomatoes.—Wash and drop into sterilized jars; do not peel the tomatoes. Add a tablespoonful of salt to every quart jar, and fill to the top with boiling water, seal and set into boiling water to cover. Wrap well with old carpet to make it hold the heat like a fireless cooker, and leave twelve to twenty hours. Then put into the cellar. These tomatoes will have a brilliant color, keep their shape and be fresh for use for almost any dish in the winter. Delicious for salads, as they are not cooked until mushy. See that the water in which they stand is boiling hot and covers them to a depth of four inches. A boiler is a good utensil to use if wanting a number of quarts at a time.

If fat is dropped on the floor, pour cold water on it at once, and the most of it will harden and can be scraped up at once.

Cold water and a little washing soda or ashes put into a granite pan that has had food burned in it, will easily clean it if brought to the boiling point.

White spots caused from heat on polished surfaces may be removed by the application of a little alcohol or camphor.

Potash in solution should be used once a week to flush the sink drains and cut the grease. Follow by a good flushing with hot water.

Nellie Maxwell.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1)—I am in the seventh grade at school and can't learn history. What can I do? (2)—I will finish grammar school this year and am undecided whether to go to College of High school. Please advise me.

BROWN EYES.

(1)—Have you ever tried to read your history as if it were a storybook? Ask your teacher to tell you where you can get interesting historical stories written for young folks then get them and read them at home. (2)—If you mean business college, it will depend upon whether or not you expect to earn your own living; if you do, better go to business college.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—We have four children. I am the oldest girl—14 years. My papa is sick and mamma supports us by washing but she is not strong. How can we help her?

D. S.

You and the next oldest one could help by making sweet popcorn balls and salted peanuts at home, then taking them around in baskets, to the offices down town and selling them to the people. Sell the balls at a cent each and put the peanuts in 5 cent packages. It will not cost much to buy the corn and raw peanuts; just get small amounts at first and increase as your trade grows. Perhaps your father can help, too. I know of people who have worked up a quite a business in popcorn balls alone. You could add taffy candy by-and-by.

You are a very dear little girl to wish to help your parents, and I hope you will succeed.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Should a girl of 14 correspond with the boys?

EDNA.

If the correspondence is as boy and girl friends, and if your mother approves, I see no objection.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am deaf and sixteen years old. I am almost 4 1/2 feet tall. When my family has company they talk and I cannot hear and nobody is interested in me and I feel badly. I see many young girls. How can I get acquainted with them? They think I am only a little girl of thirteen years. Every Sunday I go to church and find no girls there. How can I talk to people about interesting things? I am very lonesome. Should a girl of sixteen play or help mother work or keep quiet? INEZ.

People usually feel it a task to talk to anybody who is deaf. I would advise you to learn the lip language, so you can know what they say and answer intelligently.

Read the newspapers and good books and you will be able to talk interestingly.

Ask your mother to invite some of the neighbor girls to a little tea or party at your house, and play games to get acquainted. Speak to them nicely when you see them on the street and ask them to visit you.

A girl of sixteen should play some, of course, but she should love to help her mother with the work, and she should know that it is best to keep quiet sometimes, too.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—When a girl is engaged and wears a diamond ring, who should remove the ring and how soon before the wedding day or ceremony? On what finger should she wear it during the ceremony and after she is married.

Take it off yourself before the ceremony or any time previous that is convenient. Do not wear any rings at all during the ceremony until your husband places the wedding ring. Wear the engagement ring over the wedding ring afterward.

ing a bit of butter. A cereal cooker is a wonderful help; a soap shaker, a dish mop, a parsley cutter, a small sifter for cabbage and potatoes and an egg poacher, a good can opener, and a first-class Hoover egg beater, will make a good shopping list for one trip, and by that time she will have decided, for herself, whether aluminum ware or a good grade of porcelain is best for her use, and whether she can afford the time necessary to keep "every modern convenience known for the kitchen" in order, or not.

It seems to me the ideal small kitchen that is at once intensely practical and comfortable, is found aboard ship. Every bit of space is utilized. There everything is within reach, and is truly "ship-shape" and there are no useless inventions, but many useful ones that "June Bride" and others would do well to have in the home kitchen. As for the artistic note, William Morris says that everything should answer one of these two questions, "Is it beautiful, or is it helpful?" If it is neither of these it should have no place in the model home. Surely daintily curtained windows, well covered floors and walls and a sweet little bride, all eagerness to have everything just right for him, gives all the beauty needed in a prosaic, work-a-day kitchen. A trip of inspection to some well furnished professional's kitchen will give ideas galore. Of course I am for women, every time, but I must admit that men seem to have used better business sense in furnishing their kitchens than the majority of women. So I advise examining a ship's kitchen, a hotel kitchen, a "Bachelor club" house kitchen, and lastly, when you think you know what you need and want, call on some intimate friend who was recently married and who will take you into her basement and let you see for yourself what kitchenware she has discarded or packed away until later.

All this will be more illuminating than anything I can advise, although dish washing machines, that won't wash egg beaters that blister the hands and don't beat vegetable cutters that cut fingers, but that are cutting anything else have been my portion at Christmas and birthdays for years, until I would welcome a wedding in the family so that I could pass them on and make room for some utensils of my own choosing. Personally, I think it would be pleasant to fit out the kitchen little by little, every one loves a bargain, and though a wire dish warmer is not a necessity at this season, they are only nineteen cents now, instead of twenty-five, and that six cents saved will go a little way toward buying a thirty-nine-cent lemon squeezer that can be attached to the corner of the table when used, and leaves both hands free to manipulate the rest of the lemonade making, and of course if one hadn't saved that six cents on something else, did not need, one would have bought a ten-cent squeezer (and it would have done just as well).

Men cannot see any logic in women's reasoning because there is none, but there is lots of excitement and a little fun about it.

"June Bride" may safely buy a meat chopper, but not the small size "because there are only two of us," the medium size will be most satisfactory. And a tea kettle boiler will save gas and prove a convenience when making a little sauce or melt-

SMITH-LEE NUPTIALS CELEBRATED SUNDAY

Miss Orrie May Smith and John Martine Lee Wedded Yesterday Morning by the Rev. H. A. Palmer.

Miss Orrie May Smith and John Martine Lee were married at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Lee, 309 Forest Park Boulevard. The Rev. H. A. Palmer officiated, using the blue ceremony. The bride wore a blue traveling suit and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Julia Lann of Beaufort, a school-mate of the bride, was bride's maid. The groom was attended by Phelps Lee, his nephew. A two-course wedding breakfast was served immediately after the ceremony. The rooms were decorated with asters and ferns. Miss Caroline Palmer entertained the guests with vocal and instrumental numbers.

The bride is the only daughter of Charles E. Smith and Mrs. Margaret Griffiths Smith, deceased, for many years residents of Jansville. Mr. Smith and his daughter have for several years been employed in the rural carrier service of the Jansville postoffice.

The groom, a brother of R. R. Lee and County Clerk Howard W. Lee, is a well known railway engineer, who has long been in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern railway.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee were the recipients of many valuable and beautiful gifts. After a honeymoon tour through the western states Mr. and Mrs. Lee will be at home to their friends after November 1 at 320 Cherry street.

Two Irishmen were walking along a country road when they came to a persimmon tree laden with green persimmons. Pat walked up to the tree and pulled several, and began eating them. Soon they began to pucker up his mouth. Turning to his comrade he said, "Molke, if you have got anything to say, say it quick, before I close up."

NASAL CATARRH.

A writer in Clinical Medicine says that nasal catarrh is largely due to improper bowel elimination. It is for this reason partly that diet is so important in all forms of catarrh. Local treatment is only palliative, never effecting a complete cure. The diet should be simple. Bran is helpful as a cleanser of the intestinal tract and oil is helpful in many cases.

JANESVILLE RIVALS CHICAGO AS HOTBED OF VICE IS CHARGE

EVANGELIST GREENE LAYS BARE SOME OF IMMORAL CONDITIONS IN CITY IN ADDRESS SUNDAY.

MAKES APPEAL TO MEN

Urges Organization of Law Enforcement League Which Will Demand Authorities to Eact Obedience to Law.

"Janesville is a rotten city morally than Chicago," was the startling statement of Evangelist Clarence Greene in his address to a men only audience at the auditorium yesterday afternoon. "My home is in Chicago," he said. "It is a rotten city and we know it. But you are not so very much behind us, nor we behind you. There is just as much corruption in the square inch in Janesville as there is in Chicago. You men may be too good to believe it, or too timid to explore and find out yourselves, but you ought to know it."

As he announced previous to the meeting Mr. Greene talked straight from the shoulder. He did not mince matters in regard to moral conditions in Janesville, and he told numerous instances of the immorality and licentiousness which exist here based on his own personal investigations. That the existence of such conditions imperiled the home and shook the foundations of society there could be no doubt in the speaker's mind and he called on the men of Janesville to stand up and stand back of their councilmen and officials, demand of them the full enforcement of the law, and see that the authorities live up to the letter of their oath of office. Every man in the auditorium stood up in response to the call at the close of the meeting.

It rested with the men of Janesville the voters, to clean things up and he called for the establishment of a law enforcement and city betterment organization made up of men who were anxious for a revolution in the present moral situation and who would insist on city officers and the city police force exacting obedience to the state law and city ordinances.

"I have nothing against you men of Janesville," declared the speaker. "But it is a fact that you have 56 saloons here and some of them are mighty rotten. You have heard of Hinky Dink of Chicago, but let me tell you now that you have some Hinky Dinks in Janesville. I have been in some of the saloons. You say that is a poor place for a preacher to be? Well it would be better if the preachers visited them more, it might open their eyes to what is going on."

There are a few things which I have seen. The law says a saloon-keeper shall not sell liquor to a drunk man. I have been in saloons in your city where there were men so drunk that they could not take the hand bills which I offered them. I had to put them in their pockets."

That there is scarcely a place in the town where tobacco is sold that there is not a slot machine, in direct violation of the law, was a fact pointed out by the speaker. He supposed that pools on ball games were being sold, although he was not sure on that point.

He had seen "sweet young women" so drunk that they could scarcely walk straight, and he has seen little children scarcely old enough to toddle coming from saloons with pails of beer, flagrant violation of the law.

Mr. Greene referred to the arrest made a few weeks ago at one of the saloons in this city, of a young girl, fourteen years of age, who was found there with several girl companions. The girl was sent to the reform school by the city authorities and the saloon-keeper was allowed to go free.

"Is that what you stand for?" asked the speaker scornfully. "I tell you you are worse than he to let him do it. If you had no other means of enforcing order and obedience to law you should invade that man's place with ball bats."

Janesville policemen are too gentle was another affirmation of the speaker. He recalled an instance of Saturday evening when he met an officer with a drunken man who could scarcely walk. The officer took the man as far as the corner helping him to walk along. He gave the fellow a push on down the street while he turned and walked the other way. This was an example of the kindness of the city's patrolmen said Mr. Greene. "I have never been on the street in the red light district where I have seen such familiarity with young women as I have witnessed in Janesville," was another thrust which caused some to wince. "There is no place where boys and girls are more corrupt," was a statement equally as plain and outspoken. He recalled the number of little boys whom he has seen on the streets smoking and the number of mere lads and young men whom he had seen loafing on the street corners or before the cigar stores.

"I could change my apparel and go out and get fifteen girls by tomorrow night," was still another charge thrown out to show the state of morality now existing.

"Unless you go to the authorities and say, 'This has got to stop,' you'll lose your homes, your boys and girls, whose ruin will be certain. I understand there are some prominent church members who own the buildings which are used as saloons. If I were the pastor of a church in which there were such men, I'd have a revival and it would get some of those men out of the church."

"As I have pointed previously in these meetings, there's a difference between Janesville and Hell. There are railroads leading out of Janesville, and there are none out of Hell. And Janesville is in the presence of God, while Hell is not."

Again and again Mr. Greene urged that there was but one way to make the city better. Let the best people in the town go to the Mayor, against whom he had no grievance but whom he described as a beautiful man, and declare that they would stand back of him and the councilmen in law enforcement. Make these explicit demands of them, was his admonition and tell them if they failed they must get out of office.

"It is merely my purpose to show you that your city is a bad one; to let you know that some father's son is always being debauched, that some mother's daughter is being destroyed. The honor of your homes is at stake, will you do your part to save them from disgrace? Men, you must do something now or you will see your town sink deeper and deeper into immorality and licentiousness."

Mr. Greene commented on the boldness of the type of young women whom he met on the streets. In all his trips through Chicago streets he had never been accosted by a woman but in Janesville, he said, some of the young women would smile the whole length of their faces when they met you. There was something vitally wrong in the homes, he said, and parents were neglectful of their sacred duty toward their children.

"I have heard, and mind you this is only hearsay, that the superintendent of your schools has been teaching the high school students songs with such words in them. Am I right?" This question caused something of a commotion in the audience, several affirming that such was the case while others were vigorous in the assertion that the head of the Janesville school system was above reproach in such matters.

"If I have wronged your school superintendent, and I have never met him I will make a public apology. That's fair enough, isn't it?" continued the speaker after the discussion had subsided. It was Mr. Greene's opinion that the school superintendent faced an extremely difficult problem in attempting to supervise the instruction of children surrounded by such evil and vicious influences.

"You can have millions of gallons of the stuff that made Milwaukee famous in your city without poisoning the present generation," was another indignant outburst. "Why do you have it? There are enough of you church people to put out the liquor traffic, isn't there?"

The amount of tobacco used in Janesville was appalling in the speaker's estimation. Never had he seen men so inclined to make "chimneys of themselves" and the habit had extended itself to boys incredibly young. The conditions of the parks in Janesville where there is but one light in the middle of several blocks, was another object of attack. He complimented the city on its natural beauty but declared it disgraceful that so beautiful a spot should be desecrated with lasciviousness and wanton vice.

Speaking from the text, Genesis 2:7: "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Mr. Greene began his talk with an exposition of the sanctity of man. The three-fold parts of his being, moral, intellectual and physical, should all be developed in equal proportions. That God's purpose in creating man to glorify Him, might be fulfilled. But men forget the sacredness of God's intent and wander in such evil conditions as now exist in Janesville. His exposition of moral conditions here followed and was listened to intently by nearly two hundred men.

At the close of his address Mr. Greene made an appeal for the men of the city to join in a crusade to clean up Janesville to which every man in the audience responded by standing.

SEASICKNESS.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

Seasickness is a disease caused by coming in contact with large bodies of water which refuse to stay in one spot.

It is one of the most treacherous and abrupt ailments in all materia medica, and is usually encountered on board of some vessel which is of a nervous disposition. Some vessels are more restless than others and begin their work just as soon as they meet a large wave, while three waves in succession are sufficient to denude the dining room.

Seasickness has a very insidious form of attack. It lights on people the first day out, and spoils their appetite and equilibrium for the remainder of the voyage. Then again, it will lie in wait until the boat is half way over and catch a man in the act of making love on the hurricane deck. Seasickness has spoiled many a love affair, as it is constantly interrupting the conversation and driving fond lovers to the lee rail on a gallop.

There are several cures for seasickness, all of which are highly effective when the boat is tied up. Some people refuse to eat anything and go around in an empty and depressed state, while others tackle the whole bill of fare and repent later in a hurried and impatient manner. The only sure cure is to take the land trip.

Some people have seasickness worse than others, and would be pleased to die in one piece rather than in installments. One of the most pleasing sights on the high seas is to see a cheery tourist, who has been over thirty-seven times assume a pale green tint, retire noiselessly to the starboard side and hang out of a porthole with a pained and expectant look.

The most common forms of seasickness on land are those generated in a hammock and the sinuous lawn swing. A lively work-out in either of these appliances will furnish a very neat imitation of the real article and discourage anybody from gambling on the briny deep.

Beer Exposed to Light for 5 Minutes Becomes Undrinkable

This is not our statement, but the deliberate opinion of one of the most renowned scientists in the world. Read the entire statement:

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles in the direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are, therefore, commendable."—Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology.

It is not enough that beer be brewed pure, it must be kept pure.

Many Americans prefer beer in a light bottle. Most brewers follow the course of least resistance.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. Schlitz is sold in Brown Bottles to protect its purity from the brewery to your glass.

He sat there for some fifteen minutes. The Spanish women and the child emerged from the archway and left the restaurant, and a few moments later he heard the scraping of chair legs and Berny's voice as she asked for her bill. He lifted the paper and appeared buried in its contents, not moving as Berny brushed back the lace curtain and passed him. Her eyes absently fell on him and she had a vague impression of the dark dome of a head emerging from above the opened sheets of the journal. As she rustled by he lowered the paper and followed her with a keen, watchful glance. He did not move till the street door closed behind her, when he threw the paper aside, snatched up his hat and flicked a silver dollar on to the cloth.

"No change," he said to the waiter, who came forward.

The surprised servant, unaccustomed to such tips, stared astonished after him as he hurried down the passage between the tables, quickly opened the door and disappeared into the darkness of the street.

Berny was only a few rods away, moving forward with a slow, loitering step. It was an easy night to follow without being observed. Walking at a prudent distance behind her, he kept her in sight as she passed from the smaller streets of the Latin Quarter into the glare and discord of the more populous highways, along Kearney Street, past the lower boundary of Portsmouth Square. He noticed that she walked without haste, now and then glancing at a window or a passer-by. She was like a person who has no objective point in view, or at least is in no hurry to reach it.

But this did not seem to be the case, for when she reached the square pressed into the angle of the seat, her hands clasped in her lap, her eyes down. Her hat cast a shadow over the upper part of her face, and below this the end of her nose, her mouth and chin were revealed as pale and sharply-cut as an ivory carving. She seemed to be sunk in thought and sat motionless; the half of her face he could see, looking very white against her black fur collar.

He was furtively surveying her, when she started, glanced out of the window and signed to the conductor to stop. The man on the front dropped to the ground and stole lightly round the car, so that its moving body hid him from her. Emptiness and silence held the street, and he could easily follow her as she walked upward along the damp and deserted sidewalk. Half-way up the block a building larger than those surrounding it rose into the night. A mounting file of bay-windows broke its facade, and a few steps above the level of the pavement, a line of doors with numbers showing black on illuminated transoms revealed it to the man opposite as a flat building. Here Berny stopped and without hesitation, evidently as one who was familiar with the place, mounted the steps and walked to the last of the doors.

The man, with soft and careful footsteps, crossed the street. As he drew nearer he saw that she was not using a latch-key, but was waiting to be admitted, leaning as if tired against the wall. He had reached the sidewalk when the door opened, vouchsafing him a bright, unimpeded view of a long flight of stairs carpeted in green. Berny entered, and for a moment, before the door closed, he saw her mounting the stairs. She had not asked for any one, or indeed made a sound of greeting or inquiry. She was therefore either expected or an habitue of the place. When the door was shut he, too, mounted the porch steps and read the number on the transom. He whispered it over several times, the light falling out on his thin, aquiline face with a sweep of dark hair drooping downward toward his collar.

Satisfied with his investigation, he left the porch and walked rapidly down the street to the corner. Here there was a lamp, and halting under its light he drew from his pocket a leather wallet and took therefrom Dominick Ryan's card with an address written on it. The pencilled numbers were the same as those on the door he had just left, and he stood looking fixedly at the card, an expression of excitement and exultation growing on his face.

CHAPTER XX.

The Actor's Story.

The afternoon of the next day Dominick came home earlier than usual. His New York friend, who was en route to Japan, had but a couple of days in San Francisco, and again claimed his company for dinner. The theater was to follow and Dominick had come home to change his clothes, and incidentally either to see Berny and explain his absence or to leave a message for her with the Chinaman.

He felt rather guilty where she was concerned. He had seen nothing of her for two days. The only time they met was in the evening after business hours, the only meal they took together was dinner. With every spark of affection dead between them, their married life the holiest sham, she had so long and so sternly trained him to be considerate of her and keep her on his mind, that he still instinctively followed the acquired habit of thinking of her comfort and arranging for it. He knew she would be annoyed at the two lonely dinners, and hoped to see her before he left and suggest to her that she telephone for one of her sisters to join her.

The flat was very quiet when he entered, and after looking into one or two rooms for her he called the Chinaman, who said Mrs. Ryan had gone out early in the afternoon, leaving no message except that she would be home to dinner. Dominick nodded a dismissal and walked into the den. He carried the evening papers in his hand, and looking at the clock he saw that he had an hour before it would be necessary for him to dress and leave the house. Berny would undoubtedly be home before then; she was rarely out after six. Meantime, the thought that she was not in and that he could read the papers in unmolested, uninterrupted silence caused a slight sense of relief to lighten the weight that was now always with him.

He had hardly opened the first sheet when a ring at the bell dispelled his hopes. It was one of his wife's habits never to carry a latch-key, which she looked upon as a symbol of that bourgeois, middle-class helplessness that she had shaken off with her other working-girl manners and customs. Dominick dropped the paper, waiting for her entrance, and framing the words with which he would acquaint her with the fact that he was to be absent again. Instead, however, of the rustle of feminine skirts, he heard the Chinaman's padding steps, and the servant entered and presented him with a card. Traced on it in a sprawling handwriting was the name "James Deafy Buford." Dominick remembered his invitation to the man to call, and realized that this probably was the only time that the actor could conveniently do so. There was an hour yet before dinner would be served, and turning to the servant Dominick told him to show the gentleman up.

A moment later, Buford entered, smiling, almost patronizingly urbane and benign. He was dressed with a rich and careful elegance which gave him a somewhat dandified air. After bestowing upon Dominick greetings that sounded as unctuous as a benediction he took his seat at the end of the cozy corner facing the door which led into the hall. From here he looked at the young man with a close, attentive scrutiny, very friendly and yet holding, under its enfolded blandness, something of absence, of inattention, as though his mind were not in the intimate customary connection with the words that issued from his lips. This suggestion of absence deepened, showed more plainly in an eye that wandered to the door, or as Dominick spoke, fell to the carpet and remained there, hidden by a down-drawn bush of eyebrow. Dominick was in the middle of a query as to the continued success of the "Klondike Monologue" when the actor raised his head and said politely, but with a politeness that contained a note of haste and eagerness, beneath it:

"Is Madame at home?"

"No, she's not at home," said Madame's husband. "But she may be in any moment now. She generally goes out for the afternoon and gets back about this time."

"Perhaps you can tell me," said Bu-

"Have I Your Permission to Talk Freely to You?"

ford, looking sideways at his gloves and cane as they lay on the end of the divan, "who—you'll pardon my seeming curiosity, but I'll explain it presently—who was the lady that came in here last night at about half-past seven?"

He looked up and Dominick was suddenly aware that his face was charged with the tensest, the most vital interest. Thrust forward, it showed a hunger for anticipation that was almost passionate. The young man was not only surprised at the expression but at the question.

"I haven't an idea," he said. "I wasn't at home to dinner last night, and didn't get in till late. Why do you want to know?"

"For many reasons, or for one, perhaps—for one exceedingly important reason."

He paused, his eyes again turned slantingly on the stick and gloves, his lips tight-pressed, one against the other.

"How did you know any woman came in here last night at that hour? Did you come up to call?" asked Dominick.

with piercing directness and speaking with an intensity of urgency that was almost a command, "can you give me half an hour of your time and your full attention? I want to speak to you of a matter, that to me, at least, is of great—the greatest—importance. You can help me; at least you can, I hope, throw some light on what is a dark subject. Have I your permission to talk freely to you, freely and at length?"

Dominick, who was beginning to feel as if he were in a play, and was exceedingly surprised and intrigued, nodded, remarking:

"Why, certainly, go on. If I can be of any help to you or explain anything for you, nothing would give me greater pleasure. Let me hear what it is."

The actor dropped his glance to the floor for that seemed an anxiously-considering moment, then he raised his head and, looking directly at his host, said:

"You may remember that, while at Antelope, I once spoke to you of having been married—of having, in fact, been unfortunate enough to lose my wife."

Dominick remembered, but it seemed imperfectly, for he said in a doubtful tone, which had more than a suggestion of questioning:

"She—er—she died?"

"No," said the other, "she did not die. I lost her in a way that I think was more painful than death. She left me, voluntarily, of her own free will."

"Oh, of course," said the young man hastily. "I remember perfectly, one day by the sitting-room fire. I remember it all as clearly as possible now."

"That was the time—the only time I mentioned the subject to you. On another occasion I spoke to that lovely and agreeable young lady, Miss Cannon, on the matter, and told her more fully of my domestic sorrows. But to you I made but that one allusion. May I now, more at length, tell you of the misfortune—I may say tragedy—of my married life?"

Dominick, mystified, nodded his head. He could not imagine why Buford should come to him at this particular moment and in this particular theatrical manner with the history of his domestic troubles. But he was undeniably interested, and feeling himself more than ever like a character in a play, said:

"Go on, tell me anything you like. And if in any way I can be of use to you, I'll be only too happy to do it."

Looking at the carpet, a heat of inward excitement showing through the professional pomposity of his manner, Buford began slowly and solemnly:

"I'll go back to seven years ago, when I was in Chicago. Previous to that, Mr. Ryan, I will tell you in confidence I had been a preacher, a Methodist, of good reputation, though, I am faint to confess, of small standing in the church. I left that esteemed body as I felt there were certain tenets of the faith I could not hold to. I am nothing if not honest, and I was too honest to preach doctrines with all of which I could not agree. I left the church as a pastor though I have never deserted it as a disciple, and have striven to live up to its standards."

He paused, and Dominick, feeling that he spoke sincerely, said:

"That was the only thing to do."

"So it seemed to me. I left the town where I was living and moved to Chicago where, through the influence of a friend, I obtained a position in a school of acting and elocution. I instructed the pupils in voice production. You may have noticed that I have an unusually deep and resonant voice. Through that, I obtained this work and received the stipend of thirty-five dollars a week. It was fairly good pay, the hours were not too long, there was no demand made of a sacrifice of conscience, and I confess that I felt much freer and more contented than I had in the church. ## OHIO PROGRESSIVES TO NAME GARFORD

Arthur L. Garford.

Arthur L. Garford, a wealthy automobile manufacturer of Elyria, will probably be nominated by the Progressives of Ohio for the governorship at their convention in Columbus on Sept. 15. Garford has been very prominent in the councils of the Republican party in Ohio for years. He withdrew from the G. O. P. a few weeks ago, and announced that he had determined to enlist under the Progressive banner.

"NO-BODY LOVES A BALD MAN"

Every day we see YOUNG men and women, who have grown prematurely grey. They immediately fall into the "Old Age" class, because grey hairs are so closely associated with OLD AGE.

It is extremely disconcerting and humiliating to be bald—to be grey when the years do not justify it. The girls laugh at the young men so married—the young man soon learns to discriminate between natural hair in its full bloom of health and NATURAL COLOR, and shabby looking grey and faded hair.

Give nature a chance. If she is encouraged, stimulated, assisted, she will give you a head of hair that you will be proud of. Give it to her. Use —

A Lesson From Our Ancestors

In the good old fashioned days of our grandmothers they depended upon the roots and herbs of the field to relieve disease.

Years have passed by, but science has never been able to improve upon the medicinal effects of these same roots and herbs which are Nature's cure for disease.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that successful remedy for female ills, had its origin in this way and today (tons of roots and herbs are consumed annually in making it.

there is neither three o'clock fatigue nor closing hour fatigue. The Monarch operator doesn't hammer the keys; she touches them. The mechanical principle exclusively incorporated in the Monarch completes the impression. A feathery touch starts it; therefore strength isn't called for and fatigue doesn't follow.

Letters written on the Monarch Typewriter are uniform in spacing, alignment and color. In addition to the Monarch Light Touch, and the exclusive Monarch Rigid Carriage feature, every other important improvement of the modern typewriting machine, such as Back Space Key, Two-Color Ribbon Shift, Contained Tabulator, etc., will also be found in the Monarch. Let us demonstrate Monarch economy of strength and time and money.

The Glance He Bent Upon Her Was Sharp and Grew in Intensity.

she took her stand on the corner where the Sacramento Street cars stop. The man drew back into a doorway opposite. They were the only passengers who boarded the car at that corner, Berny entering the closed interior, the man taking a seat on the outside. He had it to himself here, and chose the end seat by the window. Muttering imprecations at the cold, he turned up his overcoat collar and drew his soft felt hat down over his ears. By turning his head he could see between the bars that cross the end windows, the interior of the car shining with light, its polished yellow woodwork throwing back the white glare of the electricity. There were only three passengers, two dooped-looking women in dingy black, and Berny on a line with himself in the corner by the door. He could see her even better here than in the restaurant. She sat, a small, dark figure.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 16, 1872.—For The Barbecue:—We have seen the ox; he weighs seventeen hundred and fifteen pounds, a short horn Durham, bright red with white spots; five years old; was raised by James McNee of Bradford, was bought for the barbecue on the 10th inst., by the butchers of Janesville.

He will be killed at the slaughter house of Ben Harrison, on Tuesday evening, will go to the grounds on the spit Wednesday afternoon, to be cooked Wednesday night and Thursday morning, and served as a free lunch on Thursday at the Southern Wisconsin Fair.

Books Opened:—Entries more numerous than ever before. Up to this time the weather has been beautiful, and promising prospects for an immense crowd on Thursday and Friday. The babies' hower is trimmed in a Christmas. Tomorrow is the first day, yet the exhibitors are all as busy as bees all over the grounds.

Brief Items:—Northern ducks are gathering at Lake Koshkonong. There is a prospect of good weather for the fair, which opens tomorrow. The atmosphere today is decidedly fall-like and it is probable that we will have a killing frost ere many days have passed.

MOTHER.

What is home without a mother? Who so well a home can grace? Ah, that sacred name! No other can usurp its honored place! Mother makes the home enchanting, makes it happy—when she's there, when she isn't galling, doing campaign work somewhere. To uplift the land she wishes, politics she'd purify and there's none to wash the dishes, none at home to make a pie. Willie has a broken smeller—he was fooling with the cow; Lizzie fell into the cellar and she's screaming down there now; little Myrtle calmly scratches all the furniture with wire; baby's playing with the matches, and he'll set the house afire. Little sister, little brother, raise the dickens with their curves. What is home without a mother? It's a place to jar your nerves. Mother's at some cheap convention, wearing father's shirt and tie, arguing her firm intention to secure a vote or die. She must have a hand in making laws that suit the female mind, and at home the kids are breaking all the dishes they can find. She will be no longer brooding tyranny that's known no change, and at home dad is cooking prunelets on a smoking range. What is home without a mother? Watch the sufferers than ever before. When they've won their fight, my brother, you will know just what it's like.

Enjoyment Within Ourselves.
We have much to enjoy in the quiet and retirement of our own thoughts.—Longfellow.

IS THIS YOUR BIRTHDAY.
It will be a wise course for you to take some extra care of your health. Bodily strength lightens material and emotional troubles, both of which threaten you.
Those born today will have versatile dispositions and some too much so for their own good. If too changeable and unfortunate in enterprises they should seek alliance with more steady minds. In this way they can become efficient.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

DINNER STORIES

A western man who had been in politics applied for a job in a nursery. He knew all about setting out trees and spraying them, and a lot of other essential things.

"Do you know anything about grafting?" asked the boss.

"Well," replied the applicant, "I was county commissioner the year we let so many contracts for bridges."

Schuyler Colfax, son of the late Vice President, and now by way of being something in the camera business, was once in politics in Indiana and achieved the distinction of being elected mayor of South Bend.

As mayor, part of his duty was to act as police judge. A town sot had been brought before him many times. Colfax had been lenient, but finally he sentenced the sot to jail until such time as he should have broken into sizes suitable for use on the road a big stone that was in the jail yard, even if it took thirty days.

The sot got a hammer and went at it. While he was working, a jailer dropped round to watch him.

"Say, Jim," said the sot, "what do you think of that squirt of a mayor of ours?"

"Oh, he's all right!"

"I know, but would it get back to him if I spoke me mind?"

"Nope. Go ahead."

"Well, I think he's got a fierce case."
